ATLANTIC PORT CITIES AND GLOBAL CONNECTIONS

CALL FOR PAPERS

Atlantic has been one of the most active trading area for centuries, and trade connectivity between Atlantic Europe is one of the most studied topics in economic history. Atlantic has had complex trade patterns and routes in the past and, on the other hand, it has been both a trading area and a transit area, linking Europe with the rest of the world through not only by the East-West transatlantic structure of maritime networks, but also combining North-South and South-North trade connectivity.

Concrete topics are:

- Maritime networks and hierarchies, regarding the structure and performance of shipping
- Port efficiency, referring to the performance of a port or group of ports, connecting hinterlands with global markets; such as transport and logistics infrastructures
- Hinterland connectivity, involving multiple players and institutions contributing to economic development
